Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurThis book contains the kind of tales that cannot be "made up". It is definitely non-fiction! I am sharing the unusual, entertaining, and heart wrenching tales of students whose personalities and special qualities have etched them into my memory forever, along with lessons learned. They are those unique teenagers who have made my classroom a place where there is "never a dull moment".. The weight of their impact on my life and thus on the lives of the students who followed them into my classroom is what carries the most meaning. I have gained enormous insight and self-knowledge from these kids. That insight and self-knowledge has enabled me to relate to and help countless other young people who have followed their footsteps through Mrs.Holmgren's room, where there truly is "Never A Dull Moment"! Biographie de l'auteurTeresa Holmgren is living in the house and on the land of the Iowa Century farm where she grew up. She has taught in special education classrooms in three different states over a span of 32 years. She has taught intellectually challenged students, students with autism, juvenile delinquents, gang members, illegal immigrants, un-wed teen mothers, and students with mental illness. Married, with five grown children, she loves to teach, read historical novels, write, and garden. She received her BSE in social sciences and special education and her MSE in secondary behavior disorders from Drake University. Teresa is currently working on writing two historical novels, set during The Depression. She still cannot wait to get to school every morning!
