During his lifetime, he was better known as personal assistant of actor Henry Irving and business manager of the Lyceum Theatre in London, which Irving owned. Before writing Dracula, he met rmin Vmbry who was a Hungarian writer and traveler. Dracula likely emerged from Vmbry's dark stories of the Carpathian mountains. He then spent several years researching European folklore and mythological stories of vampires. After suffering a number of strokes, he died at No. 26 St George's Square on 20 April 1912. The original 541-page manuscript of Dracula, believed to have been lost, was found in a barn in northwestern Pennsylvania in the early 1980s. It included the typed manuscript with many corrections, and handwritten on the title page was "THE UN-DEAD." The author's name was shown at the bottom as Bram Stoker. The manuscript was purchased by Microsoft co-founder Paul Allen.
